

FRANK C. BUCARO, CSP, CPAE

Frank Bucaro is an ethics expert who is a leading advocate-- speaking, training and writing-- on the benefits of ethics and values.

His unique career path, from the classroom to the boardroom began a number of years ago, when a succession of high profile media reports on ethics problems captured his attention. While still a teacher, he became increasingly aware that problems relating to unethical practices in the marketplace seemed to be on the increase.

Believing that ethics and values had the power to contribute to success rather than impede it, Frank left teaching and began offering keynotes and seminars on ethics and values-based leadership. Today his distinctive programs are a natural fit with organizations interested in reinforcing their commitment to ethics and values in the workplace, and reducing vulnerability to costly ethics and compliance problems.

He is a business owner and author of the book Trust Me! Insights into Ethical Leadership. Frank is one of 2800 members of the National Speakers Association and has earned their designation of CSP which stands for Certified Speaking Professional. He was also presented with NSA's prestigious CPAE Speaker Hall of Fame Award for excellence and professionalism, an award held by fewer than 200 people worldwide.

A few of the organizations that have invited Frank to speak at their meetings include the Association of Government Accountants, Blue Cross Blue Shield, the Ethics and Compliance Officer Association, Global Compliance Client Advisory Council, the Human Resources Professionals Association of Ontario, New York Life, Noble Energy, RE/MAX International, and Southern Illinois Healthcare.
